Dave Verhaagen and Frank Gaskill and their colleagues at SoutheastPsych in Charlotte have built a creative and successful clinical practice that could be the envy of any private practitioner. Influenced by their core values of FIRE (Fun, Innovation, Relationship, and Excellence) the authors describe their experiences of creating a group practice of more than 30 clinicians, all with full clinical caseloads, working completely outside of managed care. Written in a reader-friendly and personal style, the authors provide a perspective and framework that you can adapt to create your own unique dream practice. Unified and strengthened by a clear mission, values, and culture, SoutheastPsych has flourished much more than Verhaagen and Gaskill had ever dreamed. They hope that How We Built Our Dream Practice: Innovative Ideas for Building Yours will do the same for you.

Here is the ultimate resource for finally turning your dream into reality. With photos, blueprints, and diagrams, Fears thoroughly covers the process of constructing the cabin you've always wanted. From buying land, construction materials, deciding on lighting, the water system, and on-site constructions—such as shooting ranges, an outhouse, or an outside fire ring—this is a book filled with nuggets of wisdom from a specialist in the field: J. Wayne Fears is a wildlife biologist by training who has organized big-game hunting camps, guided canoe trips, and run commercial getaway operations. He built his own log cabin in the early 1990s and has been enjoying it ever since. Now you can build and enjoy the cabin you've always dreamed of, too.

Building the American Dream

"Never Again," Richard La Plante promised after he and his new wife completed building their family home in East Hampton, New York. But he did not keep his promise. Instead, he bought twenty acres of raw land on a mountaintop located three and half thousand miles away, in a small town that he had only visited by internet And the nightmare began. A house in New York to sell, a massive loan to pay off for the newly purchased land, dishonest builders, some of the most stringent building codes in America, and the economic collapse of 2008. With no general contractor, because they had decided to save money by doing it themselves, La Plante and his wife face an empty bank account, a black widow spider infestation and a large wooden frame with no windows. With two young sons to raise, a stony silence between them and a marriage counselor who says in sagely fashion, "There's only one answer. Finish the house," the La Plantes stumble from disaster to disaster. Never Again is a seven year chronicle of trial and triumph, both a warning and inspiration to anyone trying to build a dream.

Building Your Field of Dreams is both a compelling personal story and a practical and inspiring guide for anyone who has ever hoped for a better life. Mary Morrissey's own dreams were nearly shattered at age 16, when pregnancy forced her into a reluctant marriage that nevertheless became the crucible for remarkable lessons in faith. As she was tested by the near-death of one of her children, by life-threatening kidney disease, and by years of struggling to make ends meet, she clung to her determination to be a minister. Now, with powerful examples from many dream-builders she has known, she shows how anyone can identify their deepest desires, build a partnership with God, confront obstacles and failure, and overcome the mental blocks that keep us from our potential. It's a great message, compellingly delivered by a great teacher. From the Trade Paperback edition.

Building The Dream

Dream, Build, Repeat: Harness Fear To Confidently Pursue Your Biggest Dreams

Serendipity is the story of how the author and his wife built a thirty-foot cruising schooner while attending law school in the mid-1960's. Lacking tools, a proper building location and any real experience in boat building, the young couple had to learn by doing and persevered in the face of a succession of challenges. The account documents the process of building a bent-frame conventionally planked traditional wooden sailing yacht in some detail. It also tries to recapture the sense of adventure that animated the project from beginning trend.

Serendipity

Building the American Dream depicts the journey of author, Gary Knapp, from his very beginnings on a rural dairy farm in southern Michigan through his teens, his tour of duty in the army, his broadcast training and then follows him as he begins his career in radio broadcasting and branches into television. Through his remarkable passion, ingenuity and enormous energy, he overcomes whatever hurdles he encounters and turns them into advantages which eventually enable him to build a network of television stations to serve the northern Michigan area. His journey is fueled by his inability to accept defeat, his persistence in finding a way to accomplish his goals by creating innovative financing when the traditional routes failed him, his trust in, and loyalty to reliable advisors and a family who supported him through thick and thin. The reader gets a first hand look at what goes on behind the scenes in radio and television production, sales and management. They accompany him as he moves from one phase of his interesting career to the next. Author Knapp, takes us back to the days of our childhood and the simple good life about which we all like to reminisce. We can smell his mom's apple pie baking as the family gathers around the radio set listening to Fibber McGee and Molly. He stimulates our memories of past parades, local celebrations, community events which he covered as a newsman and broadcaster and recreates the home town atmosphere of typical small towns through out our country. This book, with its motivational and informative hints, could be considered a handbook on how to attain one's goals and dreams, or by some, a guideline showing the steps necessary to succeed in business ventures and by others, just a 'good read.' Gary Knapp has brought to life, a story, rich in human interest, history of radio and television, entrepreneurship and events in the town of Cadillac, Michigan, where Gary took broadcasting to a higher level while building his American dream.

As the first step of new generation taking cognizance of the world, kindergartens occupy a unique proportion in the social component and gradually gain people's more attention. BUILD A DREAM: ARCHITECTURE + DESIGN FOR KIDS collects excellent works from outstanding architects from all over the world, and builds a dream kingdom for children to grow up. Many of the architects in this book are also exploring the balance between social space and growth space, seeking a blend of healthy and interpersonal environments to create a healthy and safe learning and living space for children. In this book, reasonable space planning, green and safe materials, and warm colors make a unique building come into being.

Caleb as they build their Animal Sanctuary in the South of England. Cliff Top Farm is their new home, their dream is to make it a safe haven for any animal in need. We follow them as they build friendships, build their sanctuary and build their relationship. From cheeky Shetland ponies to escapee goats, ageing equines to newborn pups, any animal that needs help is welcome. They experience everything from birth through to death in their first year, learning as they go, from the team of staff and friends they find along the way. Animals form the backdrop for this novel, as well as providing some jeopardy and humour, but the real story is about the human relationships that are formed. With romance, grief, jealousy and joy this story should appeal to anyone, not just animal lovers. Building The Dream is a stand alone novel, but is also the second book of a series, At The Cliff Top. The series follows the lives of Carrie and Caleb, plus other characters old and new. There will always be animals involved but the human relationships are the real subject. I hope you enjoy my second novel and it leaves you wanting more!

Growing Up Wright

For Gwendolyn Wright, the houses of America are the diaries of the American people. They create a fascinating chronicle of the way we have lived, and a reflection of every political, economic, or social issue we have been concerned with. Why did plantation owners build uniform cabins for their slaves? Why were all the walls in nineteenth-century tenements painted white? Why did the parlor suddenly disappear from middle-class houses at the turn of the century? How did the federal highway system change the way millions of Americans raised their families? Building the Dream introduces the parade of people, policies, and ideologies that have shaped the course of our daily lives by shaping the rooms we have grown up in. In the row houses of colonial Philadelphia, the luxury apartments of New York City, the prefab houses of Levittown, and the public-housing towers of Chicago, Wright discovers revealing clues to our past and a new way of looking at such contemporary issues as integration, sustainable energy, the needs of the elderly, and how we define "family."

From USA Today Bestselling Author Magdalena Scott
One month to build a dream, or to watch it die. It's a renovation project that will change their lives. Chloe McClain needs a classy art gallery, ASAP. She's invested years of her life, and everything she owns, in the upcoming event that can make or break her career, and possibly give her beloved hometown a much-needed boost. Chloe has heard that the handsome new builder in town is the best one to hire for the job. She'll just have to ignore the fact that his personality stinks. Building contractor Greg Andrews thinks Chloe's pile of bricks should be put out of its misery. But since he knows better than to get on the wrong side of the McClain family, he takes the job. His decision has nothing to do with the way Chloe's eyes sparkle when she's excited, or the view when she stomps away from him in her snug jeans. Women like her are bad news--he learned that the hard way.

How to Plan, Subcontract and Build Your Dream House

In this completely redesigned follow-up to the successful Building A Dream, readers will get a look at the architecture and the ideas and stories behind the structures which have been designed by some of the most renowned contemporary architects--Robert Venturi, Robert A. M. Stern, Arata Isozaki, Frank Gehry, Aldo Rossi, and Michael. Disney has set new standards for postmodern architecture and has become one of its leading patrons anywhere in the world. The resulting projects, which include quirky, fantastic theme parks, hotels, resorts, movie studios, and offices, are evidence of how Disney's long-standing use of popular, often surreal, imagery and iconography has been absorbed into the architects' styles. This stunning oversize and collectible volume will feature original architectural drawings and superb color photographs of the projects alongside an expertly written text that incorporates extensive interviews with the architects and executives involved.

Build Your Dream Network

Building Your Dream House

The journey from where you are today to where you desire to be tomorrow can begin with just a dream. If you can dream something, you can build it, irrespective of who you are. If your heart can capture it and you are willing to pay the price of conception, you can accomplish it. This book will help you begin your own journey of transformation. You will be inspired and encouraged to peel back the layers of pretence and lies that hold you back and become the person you were created to be. No more sitting or lying down when you should be standing tall. Your time is now.

Building a Dream

The Dream Chaser

Dreams are meant to be lived, not just written about in a journal, on a goal sheet, or pasted on a vision board. Too many are held back by comparison, fear, lack of support, lack of clarity, and ultimately, lack of confidence. In these pages you'll learn the 7 step process to discover your dream, recognize your unique talents, and execute a strategy to see your dream take form in the world. This book is for- the person who knows there's more for them, but isn't sure what it is.- the professional tired of blending in and seeking to stand out from the crowd. - the dreamer who's afraid to dream again after disappointment. - the thought-leader who's been made to feel insignificant by circumstance. - the builder who's lost the motivation to step out in faith after loss. - the creative who's been rejected and is seeking validation and acceptance. Ultimately, it's for the one, regardless of age or experience, who's ready for a shift and is committed to taking action to manifest their desires in the world. It's for YOU. Your ideas are valid. You are enough. There are people waiting for you to own your expertise and share it confidently and fearlessly. Dream it, build it, and repeat it.
